Top 10 Reasons Why Students Drop Out of College

1. Financial - A college education is very expensive at some schools. Some students find that their financial aid is not sufficient to cover the high cost of tuition, books, and living expenses. So, take classes at a community college where classes are less expensive, apply for scholarships, and talk to the financial aid office for solutions.

2. Need to get a full time job - Some students find they can’t pay their bills so they drop school to go to work. But you CAN continue to get your degree while working. You can take a night or an on-line class. Going part-time will get you a degree.

3. Family issues - Family is very important and sometimes it is hard to juggle all of the demands. Taking on-line classes may give you the flexibility you need in order to keep working on your degree. Sometimes taking a class or two can be a great “escape” as well.

4. Too much stress - Don’t underestimate the amount of time and energy going to school takes. Be prepared and disciplined to avoid unneeded stressors that, procrastination for instance, can bring.

5. Unsure of major - You will eventually need to declare a major if you want to get a bachelor’s degree. If you still feel undecided, take a career class, volunteer at an organization you are interested in, or take a class that sounds interesting. It may lead you to a career.

6. Unprepared for the work load - College can be a lot tougher than high school. You may need to study harder and longer to be successful in college.

7. Personal emergency - Unavoidable circumstances sometimes happen. Talk to your teachers about emergency situations. When all else fails, never fail your classes; withdraw instead.

8. The college atmosphere was not right - Traditional colleges are not always the right fit for all students. Fortunately, there are on-line alternatives, community colleges, and programs for non-traditional students.

9. Too much fun outside of class - Personal freedom comes with personal responsibility.

10. Lack of advising - It is important to stay informed and personally understand the graduation requirements for your degree.

UB in the News...

Summer 2018 theme is “The Amazing Race Compete to Complete” and the trip will be to Springfield, Illinois.

Friend UB at MAC on Facebook to see more pictures, videos, and find your old UB friends! Search for “Upward Bound at MAC.”

From the Archives - 2009

Look at this enthusiastic group of Adopt-a-Highway volunteers! In case you are wondering, UB students are still earning volunteer hours keeping Missouri roads clean. You will find the current UB Adopt-a-Highway sign about 3 miles from the college on Highway 32 east.

I hope these ice skating pictures take you back! Our latest trip was January 2018.

Then

Now

Best wishes to this newest group of UB alumni! It’s amazing what a difference a year makes! This group went to MAC, SEMO, Truman, College of the Ozarks, and Stevens! Hang in there guys! You have a long way to go!
Remembering...

I hope these pictures bring back some happy memories for those students whose lives were touched by the brief lives of these UB students. May their memories and the lessons we learned from them continue to live. Make the most of every day because even those that seem mundane are precious. Enjoy your life and be thankful for every moment.
